

About the Lecturer:

Assoc. Prof. Esra Arsan received her Ph.D from the Institute of Social Sciences, Department of Journalism at Marmara University, Turkey. She has worked as a lecturer in journalism at Istanbul Bilgi University, Turkey, between 1998 and 2012. Currently, as a member of Institute of Social Sciences, she is working for the Cultural Studies program at the same university. She is a former fellow of Thomson Reuters Institute of Journalism in Oxford University, UK. Her research interests are political communication and the practice of political journalism in Turkey. She is currently working on the cultural narratives of war and peace in Turkish news media.

Current publications:

* Arsan, Esra (2015). Perception of TRT Kurdî by the Kurds of Turkey: A research on broadcasting in mother tongue, Research report, founded by the Raoul Wallenberg Institute of Human Rights Law and Friederich Ebert Stiftung

* Arsan, Esra & Yasemin Yıldırım (2014). ‘Reflections of neo-Ottomanist discourse in Turkish News

Media: The case of The Magnificent Century’, Journal of Applied Journalism & Media Studies 3: 3, pp. 315–334, doi: 10.1386/ajms.3.3.315_1 (ISSN: 2001-0818)

* Arsan, Esra et al (2013). “A Content Analysis of the Representation of the European Uprising in Turkish News Media”, in Folia Oeconomica: Multivariate Statistical Analysis Theory and Practice, 285, Eds: Czeslaw Domanski, Aleksandra Kupis-Fijalkowska, University of Lodz Publishing, Lodz: Poland (ISSN: 0208-6018)

* Arsan, Esra (2013). “Killing Me Softly with His Words: Censorship and Self-Censorship from the Perspective of Turkish Journalists”, Turkish Studies Journal, Routledge-Taylor & Francis Group, Volume 14, Issue 3, September 2013-SSCI